INTERNATIONAL FOUNDATION FOR SCIENCE (IFS)
Grev Turegatan 19, S-114 38 Stockholm, Sweden

The International Foundation for Science (IFS), a non-governmental organisation founded in 1972, supports Young Scientists from developing countries for their research efforts in the following fields: Crop Science; Forestry/Agroforestry; Food Science; Natural Products; Animal Products and Aquatic Resources by providing research grants up to US $12,000 (for one research period from one to three years) for purchasing the basic tools of research: equipment, expandable supplies, and literature.

Research grants applications are submitted directly to the Foundation (IFS) which depends on a worldwide network of scientific advisors/experts to evaluate the proposed research project.

Indian young, talented scientists (normally under 40 years of age) working in any University or Research Institution, who wish to avail of the IFS research grant facilities may obtain further information from the following:
