Bright career opportunity in R&D of medicinal and aromatic plants at CIMAP

Central Institute of Medicinal and Aromatic Plants (CIMAP), a premier institution of CSIR through its well-defined mission of 'Green Path for Better Health and Life', is making available the improved agro- and processing and bio-technologies of commercially important medicinal and aromatic plants and gene and biomolecule prospection for drug discovery.

If you are aspiring to pursue your career in these challenging areas of medicinal and aromatic plants research and development and possess requisite qualifications and experience, CIMAP offers the opportunity for one post of Scientist-EI, Group-IV(3) in the pay scale of Rs 12,000–375–16,500 (Unreserved) in Central Institute of Medicinal and Aromatic Plants.

Essential qualification:

First Class Master's degree in Molecular Biology/Genetics/Molecular Genetics/Biotechnology/Biochemistry with seven years of research experience or Ph.D. in the above areas with four years of research experience.

Desirable qualification:

Experience of working in the area of molecular genetics/genomics/proteomics for drug development/high throughput screening for bio-molecule prospection and in-silico biological modelling for drug development.

Job requirement:

The selected candidate will be expected to undertake research in the area of drug discovery and target based bio-evaluation of plant compounds besides functional genomics and proteomics and molecular genetics, activity directed fractionation and in-silico biology for drug modelling.

Age limit:

40 years.

Interested candidates may apply in the prescribed form by 1 September 2003. The details of the post, qualification, job requirement, terms and conditions, etc. can be seen in the issue of Employment News dated 2–8 August 2003.
