
Current Science has been using the Open Journal Systems (OJS) software for processing submissions since 2013. We are pleased to inform you that beginning 1 August 2023, the journal office will migrate to the new version of OJS Software. The present software is available with the URL (<https://ojs.currentscience.ac.in>), whereas the new OJS software will have the following URL (<https://ojspkp.currentscience.ac.in>)

Existing users from the present OJS software will be moved to the new version of OJS software and can log into the new version of the software using the same login details.

The creation of new user IDs has already been stopped in the present OJS software to facilitate the migration of the user database. Hence, new user registration and all the new submissions should be made on the new version of OJS (<https://ojspkp.currentscience.ac.in>) only.

Submissions made until 31 July 2023 will be processed using the present version of OJS software. The submissions made from 1 August 2023 will be processed using the new version of OJS.

We look forward to your kind cooperation during this phase of transition to the new version of the software. Please revert to currsci@ias.ac.in with the subject line 'Query on New version of OJS', if you have any questions or need more information.
